

Superman Hexology:

- Man of Steel. Part i - [The classic superman story. Not an origin exactly. Clark has just cemented himself as Superman, he's been Superman for around six months at this point. No aliens. No crazy world ending events. Just a young clark finding his way in this world while going against a goofy villain like the Toyman. Mostly set in Metropolis. Highly inspired by "Superman Smashes The Klan" book by Gene Luen Yang. He is reluctant to go to the fortress of solitude. Clark is not yet comfortable with his alien race, he has not truly accepted his Kryptonian side and his heritage. He doesn't fly, use his heat vision, x-ray vision, anything that is too weird, too alien, things a human cannot achieve. Strength, speed, and jumping really high. Those things are things humans can already do, he just is the most extreme end of it. By the end though he will fly, and shoot lasers out of his eyes. Once he has accepted who he really is. His suit is made by his earth mom and he loves it, it looks like the fleisher version. This story is very much an asian-american story just as much as it is a Superman story. So those supporting characters and the themes addressing belonging, racism it's all in there. ]
- Man of Tomorrow. Part ii - [The story that takes things to the next level. Set mostly in space. Highly inspired by "Up in the Sky" Book by Tom King. iykyk.]
- Man at the Garden. Part iii - [End of the "origin" story. Highly inspired by "For All Seasons" by Jeph Loeb.]
- Man Up Above. Part iv - [We get a time skip. We now follow an older Superman in his prime. Inspired by All-Star Superman comic]
- Man in the Mirror. Part v - [Loosely inspired by "Secret Identity" comic by Kurt Busiek]
- Man of the Hour. Part vi - [End of the "old man Superman" story loosely based on "Whatever Happened to the Man of Tomorrow" by the great Allen Moore. With a pinch of 'Kingdom Come']

Man of Steel's setting:

The movie will be set in the present. A modern superman. What is the status quo of metahumans and superpowered individuals? Well they exist. This is an elseworld story, I am not interested in telling a story movie goers and lovers have already seen and are familiar with. Some ch